To my much Honoured Friend,

John Jeffryes, Gent.

S I R,

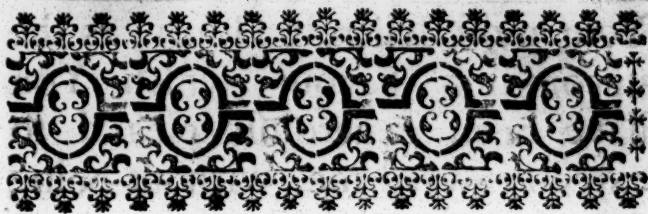

HE excellent Taste You have of the most polite Authors, as well as Value shew'd to any Sort of Literature which may be serviceable to our Country, are Qualifications justly laying Claim to Your Patronage of this Histori-geographical Treatise of Great-Britain, and therefore 'tis my Presumption to hope it will find a favourable Acceptance at Your benign Hands. But that which farther emboldens me to pay this small Offering of my Gratitude to the Perusal of

The DEDICATION.

Your most leisurely Hours, is the uncommon Favour which You have been generously pleas'd to extend toward me, without being worthy the Honour of meriting Your exemplary Friendship; which all, who know You, so much strive to obtain, that they fear no Enemy, if You vouchsafe to espouse their Cause. Should I launch out any farther on this heroick Virtue, so conspicuously shining in You, Your Goodness would be apt to accuse me of Flattery; therefore I shall conclude, in attempting (after wishing You all Health and Prosperity in this World, and eternal Bliss in that to come) to subscribe my self,

*Your most humble,
and most obliged Servant,
to Command,*

H. S.

THE PREFACE.

HIS small Dictionary (the like whereof was never publish'd before) is purposely design'd for a Pocket Volume, that it may serve for a daily Companion to most Men of Business; for herein Tradesmen and Merchants may not only see the Distances of all the Cities, Towns, and most noted Villages in Great-Britain, but also on what Days of the Week and Month they may either buy and sell their Commodities in all Markets and Fairs, whether fixed or moveable; Gentlemen may find out, in an

The PREFACE.

Alphabetical Method, what Places send Members to Parliament; Astrologers, by finding out the Longitude and Latitude of the Places where People, who converse with them, were born, may the better compute their Genethliacal Calculations; and Mariners may see the Bearings of Towns and Cities from London, with the Points of the Compass, to which when the Moon comes, it makes High-Water at any Seaport; and so to find out the Tides daily, by understanding the Use of the following Tables.

The Use of the Table above.

SUPPOSE you would know the Time of Full Sea or High-Water on the 16th of May, 1720, at Weymouth, find out the said Place in the Dictionary, and then in the first Table finding out the Place again, against it you will find the Number 9, with which enter that of the three other Tables, over which you shall find 9 in the Head, and against the Number 20, under the Title of the Moon's Age, you will see opposite to it under the Head 9, the Number 10, which shews that it is then Full Sea or High-Water at 10 of the Clock at Weymouth.

We shall not say much more of the Necessity of this Pocket-Volume, but that the Historical and Geographical Part thereof was taken out of Camden, Speed, Mercator's Atlas, and the best Maps; and to make it more compleat for all Persons who have Business in the Country, an Alphabetical List is subjoyn'd, shewing all the Inns where the Stage-Coaches and Carriers put up in London, and the Parts adjacent: So to conclude, we doubt not but the great Usefulness of what we may justly call Multum in Parvo, will find a kind Acceptance of all our Countrymen.

Ayre, a Town in Shire Ayre, or Kyle, 380 Miles N. W. from London, having a good Harbour in its River, over which is a beautiful Stone Bridge, containing four Arches, and lies conveniently for Trade. It is noted for the treacherous Murder of many Noblemen and Gentlemen by the English glisb in Wallace's Time, when they were call'd together in a Time of Truce, after Edward the First had over-run the Country, on Pretence of holding a Justice-Air, and basely hang'd one after another as they enter'd the King's large Barns, where the Court was held. This was justly and severely reveng'd by Wallace, with whom they had made the Truce, as Warden of Scotland, and whom they endeavour'd to have entic'd thither by their Charter of Peace, or safe Conduct, as they had done a great many others of Quality; but he having Notice of what pass'd, surpriz'd 'em that very Night in their Jovialty, after they had committed this barbarous Murder, by which they thought they had secur'd all Scotland for ever; and having set a Guard round the Barns, that none should escape, he burnt them, with all the Englisb therein. The Ruins of those Barns are still to be seen by the Side of the Town, which sends to Parliament a Member for its self, and for Irwing, Rothsey, Campbelton, and Inveraray. Here is a Fair kept on the 24th of June, and 29th of September. Long. 10 d. 20 m. Lat. 55 d. 38 m.

B A

Bakewell, a Town in Darbyshire, 115 Miles N. W. by N. from London, having a Market on Mondays; and a Fair on the 15th of August. Long. 19 d. 2 m. Lat. 53 d.

Bala, a Town in Merionethshire, 145 Miles N. W. by W. from London, where a Market is kept on Saturdays, and a Fair on the 29th of June. Long. 16 d. 42 m. Lat. 53 d. 9 m.

Baldock, a Town in Hartfordshire, 29 Miles N. N. W. from London, where a Market is kept on Thursdays, and a Fair on the 24th of February, and the 25th of July. Long. 20 d. Lat. 51 d. 9 m.

Bamf, the chief Town of Shire Bamf, 434 Miles N. E. from London, lies at the Mouth of the River Dover, but has no Port, and by consequence little Trade, except from its Corn, and the Salmon fishing in the abovesaid River. It hath a Fair on the 2d of February, 15th of May, 24th of June, 8th and 30th of September, and 14th of December. Long. 18 d. 1 m. Lat. 59 d. 19 m.

Bam-

Bampton, a Town in Oxfordshire, 56 Miles W. by N. from London, where a Market is kept on Wednesdays. Long. 5 d. 45 m. Lat. 51 d. 45 m. It is also the Name of another Town in Devonshire, 134 Miles W. by S. from London. Long. 14 d. 10 m. Lat. 51 d.

Banbury, a Post-Town in Oxfordshire, 53 Miles N. W. from London, pleasantly situated upon the Cherwell. It is a rich Place, particularly noted for the Excellency of its Cheese; but far more memorable for the Battles fought in its Neighbourhood, and the Sieges it has sustain'd. 'Twas near this Town that Kenrick, one of the West Saxon Kings, overthrew the Britains; and where Richard Nevil, Earl of Warwick, commonly call'd the Make-King, routed Edward the Fourth, took him Prisoner, and so restor'd Henry the Sixth to the Throne. After the Fight at Edghill, in the Reign of Charles the First, this Place was taken, and the King put a Garrison into it. Two Years after it endur'd a sharp Siege, and several Storms, till reliev'd by the Earl of Northampton.
